Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 18,20-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kilgour (U.S. Patent No. 5,760,116).

Kilgour teaches colored cosmetic compositions known in the art for having improved spreadability and substance (see abstract), wherein the compositions comprises a silicone gel consisting of a gel which is formed by the hydrosilylation product of a linear alkenyl stopped polyorganosiloxane and a resin (col.5, lines 35-67, bridging col.6, lines 1-51). Kilgour also discloses a process for dispersing a silicone gel comprising a hydrosilylating a linear alkenyl stopped polyorganosiloxane (col.4, lines 36-67) with a resin, in the presence of a first silicone thereby forming a gel and mixing said gel with a second silicone (col.5, lines 7-31). Kilgour teaches that the compositions are known to be useful in color cosmetics such as lipsticks, blushes, foundations, makeup and mascara (col.8, lines 48-58) which defines a colored material. There is no criticality in the selection of the particular silicone gel since the prior art teaches colored cosmetic compositions consisting of a silicone gel mixed with a second silicone and a colored material.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the teachings of the Kilgour reference, because Kilgour teaches a cosmetic composition comprising a silicone gel mixed with a second silicone, and a colored material consisting of color cosmetics such as foundations, makeup, lipsticks and mascara, known for the purpose of improving spreadability.

The expected result would be a cosmetic composition comprising a silicone gel mixed with a second silicone and a colored material .
